

Layout Policy

With over seventy years of experience in producing the highest quality photo composites, Vantine Imaging has developed an extensive list of criteria and standards that guide the creation of your organization's composite. Your composite's final layout, design, and size will be at the discretion of the studio, based upon these criteria and standards.

We will work with you, and make every effort to consider your requests, such as where the officers are placed, the number of rows above the crest, the members placed under the crest, the picture style and the member sequences. However, because of year-to-year fluctuations in such elements as the number of people on the composite, and the number of officers, we may be unable to meet all of your requests. In all cases, we will rely upon years of experience and exacting standards of design to create your composite.

Vantine Imaging relies upon a design standard called our "block and symmetrical design." This means we avoid designs using staggered rows, or layouts that are asymmetrical. These standards assure you consistency in your organization's composite, and enable us to produce your composite accurately, and efficiently, year after year.
